BRING STORYTELLING INTO YOUR CLASSROOM

The Our World Readers are six levels of original stories, folktales, myths, and non-fiction from around the globe. Each Our World Reader is a great way to support the language covered in the Student Books, encourage reading for fun, and bring storytelling into your English language-learning classroom.

To make it easy to use the Our World Readers in your curriculum, a graded reader is available to support the theme and language of each unit. Each includes fun facts and activities and is also available as Story Time in the Our World Video.

- One graded reader for each unit
- Big Books for levels 1 and 2
- Available in the Our World Video
Percy tried another experiment. He used the radio waves to pop popcorn kernels. The popcorn kernels popped! He used the radio waves on anything. For his next experiment, he put an egg in a microwave. The hot egg exploded all over Percy's yard! It was a successful experiment. Percy and his colleague. A scientist named Percy Spencer invented the microwave in 1945. A scientist named Percy Spencer. Of course, microwaves are much smaller today and are used for cooking foods. Of course, microwaves are more smaller today and are used for cooking foods. Microwaves were invented by accident. As you've read, some popular foods were created by accident. Some popular foods were created by accident. You never know what an accident can lead to. You never know what an accident can lead to. Remember, some wonderful inventions were created by accident. Remember, some wonderful inventions were created by accident. So next time you do something by accident, ask yourself: 'Is there a good idea in this accident?'

WORLD WINDOWS 1-3
National Geographic

LEVEL: beginning

World Windows is a nonfiction reading series which helps students build language skills and learn about the world around them. This three-level course is designed for emergent readers and features a rich variety of National Geographic images and content. Through topics as diverse as earth science and economics, students will be exposed to a wide variety of text types, structures, and features.

Each reader is accompanied by a full-color workbook with activities and exercises to reinforce their learning. A multi-ROM is also available and features an interactive version of the reader and many more exercises.

► Introduces students to a variety of text types commonly used in nonfiction texts – recount, informational, persuasive and procedural.
► Nonfiction can be more challenging than fiction because there is more than one way to organize a nonfiction text. You can find the following text structures in World Windows: description/listing, sequence, compare & contrast, cause & effect and problem & solution.
► Nonfiction text features support or add information in the main text. World Windows introduces students to a wide range of text features, including: table of contents, captions, charts, diagrams, flow charts, glossary, graphs, heading, illustrations, index, introduction, labels, magnifications, maps, picture sequences, pronunciation guides, sidebars, tables and timelines.
► Each reader in the series focuses on a particular comprehensive strategy to improve students’ reading skills: identify main idea & details, classify, compare & contrast, identify cause & effect, sequence, draw conclusions and predict outcomes.

Online Teacher’s Guides

Each level of science and social studies is accompanied by a Teacher’s Guide. Each Teacher’s Guide contains:

► Background information about content area
► Prereading instruction
► Vocabulary preview
► Teaching instruction and comprehension questions for each student book page
► Notable text structures, comprehension strategies, and text structures
► Workbooks answer key
► Worksheet answer key
